

Useful Ideas for 2016-DSE English Language Paper 4 Topic 2.3

The benefits of living at home with your parents

1. Young adults can save on rent and housing costs, as Hong Kong's property prices are extremely high. (from text)
2. Living at home means parents can provide home-cooked meals and help with daily household tasks.
3. Young adults can maintain a close bond with their parents and offer support as they age.
4. The family home provides a financial safety net during periods of unemployment or career change.
5. Young adults can save more money towards buying their own flat in the future.

The disadvantages of living at home with your parents

1. Living at home largely prevents young adults from becoming truly independent in their 20s. (from text)
2. Young adults can never feel completely comfortable under the watchful eyes of their family. (from text)
3. Family members' "invisible powers" dictate what young adults can and cannot do at home. (from text)
4. Young adults must be careful of their actions out of respect for their elders, limiting their freedom. (from text)
5. Hong Kong's small flats leave little room for privacy, making it hard to have personal space.

Other ways young adults can be independent while living with their parents

1. Young adults can turn their room into a private sanctuary and manage their own daily routine. (from text)
2. They can manage their own finances and savings independently without relying on their parents.
3. They can take full responsibility for their own meals, laundry, and daily chores.
4. They can set clear boundaries with their parents about personal space and lifestyle choices.
5. They can pursue hobbies, social activities, and personal goals outside the home.